Memo for Record:

To whom it may concern:

The following pages are being submitted in accordance with the non-disclosure statement which I signed on March 10, 1982. They are portions of a longer manuscript which I wrote about two years ago. Rather than submit the entire manuscript, I was advised by the SSO's that a submission of all the pages that could possibly contain information derived from SI would be sufficient. To the best of my knowledge all information contained in these pages was in fact derived from data previously reported in the open press.

I would also like to comment on the tone and language adopted on these pages. This is fiction and not in any way a political statement. Most of what was said here was said to serve the purposes of the story. Hence my statements on the viability of technically-derived intelligence were not motivated by real objections; rather they served to reinforce the logical need for something like my spy-flv in order to keep the story going. Any resemblance to real people, not specifically labelled as such, is also purely coincidental.

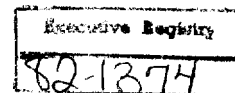

Finally I would like to add my willingness to publish under a nom de plume if that is deemed preferable. While your decisions and recommendations on the manuscript are pending I have secured all copies except the one on file with the US Copyright Office.
